The Burrowes house, at Middletown Point, where the company was formed described by Major S. S. Forman. Here, also, occurred the raid of "the Greens" in the early June morning, the 5th, 1778. The object was to capture the son, Major John, at home for a few hours. He was alarmed in time to jump from his bed, reach the lower story, escape through a window, swim the creek and find safety through his knowledge of the country.

The picture to the right shows the fine old hall of the Burrowes house. The chair on the first landing marks the spot where Mrs. Burrowes was met and sabred by the brutal officer for refusing her shawl to bind the wounds of a raider—a wound resulting in blood poisoning and death in very early life. The burning of the mills owned by Burrowes & Forman is recorded in local histories. The taking of John Burrowes, Sr., to a prison ship, the seizure of two prominent Tories of Middletown by Colonel Henderson and William Wikoff, bringing them to Monmouth jail as hostages, and that securing Burrowes' release.

THE MONMOUTH ASSOCIATORS.

BY JAMES STEEN.

No county in the State of New Jersey suffered more during the Revolution than did Monmouth, and in no county did the citizens respond more nobly. The proximity to the shore and readiness of access by boat from New York rendered it peculiarly the prey of the British. There was super-added to that, a lawless element even more irresponsible and regarding less the rules of warfare, than the guerillas in our late Civil War. Tories and refugees, well acquainted with the county and knowing the inhabitants, preyed upon the aged and infirm who had property that they could take or destroy, and committed all sorts of excesses and outrages, shooting children and old men and hanging women, burning houses and barns, and destroying animals and other property that they could not conveniently carry off.

Notwithstanding, many of her able bodied men were in the Army, the large proportion of those that remained were to be found in the Militia. The Tories and pine robbers had no compunction against invading and destroying homes that were occupied only by the women and the feeble. So obnoxious did they become, aided as they were by the more cowardly neighbors of the patriots, who while committing no overt act, were in league with Tories and refugees, that the Monmouth patriots were forced to take action against traitors in their midst. Hence it is that there has come down to us a document, which while it adds to the history of the county a valuable chapter, is also a roll of honor for the descendants of those who thus banded themselves together in their country's defense. It was in the spring of the year 1780 that the patriots of Monmouth, tried beyond measure by repeated outrages and robberies, and realizing the assistance the non-combatant Tories still living unmolested in their midst were rendering the refugees, Tories and pine robbers, resolved on redress by retaliation. The document which follows is unique, and of the 436 names subscribed nearly one-half served either in the Continental Army or in the Monmouth Militia before the war was concluded. Every part of the county was represented, and the Committees of Safety of the various townships are represented among the names of those who were not only willing to associate but also to have that fact advertised in the New Jersey Gazette.

The Articles of Association are as follows:—

Monmouth Articles of Association.

Whereas from the frequent incursions and depredations of the enemy (and more particularly of the refugees) in this county, whereby not only the lives but the liberty and property of every determined Whig are endangered, they, upon every such incursion, either burning or destroying houses, making prisoners of, and most inhumanly treating aged and peaceable inhabitants, and plundering them of all portable property, it has become essentially necessary to take some different and more effectual measures to check said practices, than have ever yet been taken; and as it is a fact, notorious to every one, that these depredations have always been committed by the refugees (either black or white) that have left this country, or by their influence or procurement, many of whom have near relations and friends, that in general have been suffered to reside unmolested among us, numbers of which, we have full reason to believe, are aiding and accessory to those detestable practices. We, the subscribers, inhabitants of the county of Monmouth, actuated solely by the principles of self-preservation, being of opinion that the measure will be strictly justifiable cn the common principles of war, and being encouraged thereto by an unanimous resolve of the honorable the congress, passed the 30th of Oct., 1778, wherein they in the most solemn manner declare that through every possible change of fortune they will retaliate, do hereby solemnly associate for the purpose of retaliation, and do obligate ourselves, our heirs, executors and administrators, and every of them jointly and severally, to all and every of the subscribers and their heirs, &c., to warrant and defend such persons as may be appointed to assist this association in the execution thereof; and that we will abide by and adhere to such rules and regulations for the purpose of making restitution to such friends to their country as may hereafter have their houses burned or broke to pieces, their property wantonly destroyed or plundered, their persons made prisoners of whilst peaceably at their own habitations about their lawful business not under arms, as shall hereafter be determined on by a committee of nine men duly elected by the associates at large out of their number; which rules and regulations shall be founded on the following principles, viz:—

FIRST—For every good subject of this state residing within the county, that shall become an associator, and shall be taken or admitted to parole by any party or parties of refugees as aforesaid, that shall come on the errand of plundering and man-stealing, the good subject not actually under or taken in arms, there shall be taken an equal number of the most disaffected and influential residing and having property within the county, and them confine within the Provost jail and treat them with British rigor, until the good subjects of this state taken as aforesaid shall be fully liberated.

SECOND — For every house that shall be burned or destroyed, the property of a good subject that enters with this association, there shall be made full retaliation upon or out of the property of the disaffected as aforesaid.

THIRD—That for every article of property taken as aforesaid from any of the associators, being good subjects, the value thereof shall be replaced out of the property of the disaffected as aforesaid. We do also further associate for the purpose of defending the frontiers of this county, and engage each man for himself that is a subject of the militia that we will turn out at all times when the county is invaded, and at other times do our proportionate part towards the defence thereof. We the associators do hereby direct that a copy of this association be, as soon as the signing is completed, transmitted to the printer of the New Jersey Gazette, for publication, and that the original be lodged in the clerk's office.

Also we do request, that the associators will meet at the courthouse on Saturday, the 1st of July, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon for the purpose of electing a committee of nine men, as before mentioned, to carry the said association into effect

Settlers of
Mon. Co. N.J.
by Beekman
Holland Lit

The number of signers to this association is 436.

It must have been an earnest and determined set of men who met that day in Monmouth Court House—Memories of the battle, recollections of wrongs, many and wicked, thronged their minds and doubtless were recalled in conversation. The committee of nine were duly appointed, and while we do not read in the papers of the day, much or anything of their forceful retaliation, still they doubtless accomplished much in the way of redressing wrongs and inspiring a healthy respect for the rough and ready justice of Monmouth patriotism. The only other notice the writer has found appears in the New Jersey Gazette of March 5th, 1783, and has a grim significance, which was doubtless appreciated by the Tory sympathizers throughout the county. It is as follows:—

"N. J. Gazette, March 5, 1783—Whereas the time of the Committee of the Associators of retaliations of the County of Monmouth expires; and it being necessary for a new one to be chosen, as there remains some business unsettled: The associators are requested to meet at the Court house on 15th March, as well to determine on said business and to be prepared for future depredations.

By order of the committee
Kenneth Hankinson,
Feb. 18, 1783 Chairman,

Kenneth Hankinson, who signed the foregoing, was a captain in Col. Forman's battalion, "Heard's Brigade," June 16th, 1776, and also captain in the First Regiment of Monmouth, 1717. His son, James Hankinson, was the father of Governor William A. Newell's mother.

UNION COUNTY, NEW JERSEY

in and about the town. In all about thirty were located. They are uniformly made out of a red sandstone similar to outcroppings between the First and Second Watchung ranges. The most primitive of these are rather shallow. Some are as deep as fourteen to sixteen inches. A few are finished both on the inside and outside, while others are superficial depressions in glacial bowlders. Diligent inquiry did not bring to light any information concerning the origin of these "stone dishes" as they were commonly called. In fact no one seems to have concerned himself about them even to a memory of their manufacture. There is reason to believe that the earliest forms were made by the Indians in which to grind their corn, and that the whites in imitation of their practice wrought more elaborate ones and used them mainly as watering troughs.

The only historic reference found thus far relative to these stone dishes being of Indian origin is in Clayton's "History of Union County." In speaking of Branch Mills he refers to a large stone in front of Parkhurst's mill door "having an excavation of some nine inches deep and about twenty-two inches across, said to have been an Indian mortar for pounding their corn."

Here follows a list of those still to be found in and about the town: Fairacre Farm, Benson Place; Walnut street, near Clark street; Miss Pierson's, New York avenue, three; Manor's, West Broad street, on Fanwood line; Mr. Neilson, Willow Grove road; Mr. Bank, 833 South avenue; Central avenue, near Park street, in Italian's garden; Mr. Brewer's farm, Benson Place, two; Mr. John Davis, East Broad street, corner of Springfield road; Fisher's place, Springfield road; Rule's farm, Woodland avenue; Ezra Miller's, Springfield road; Ditzell's, Springfield road, near Fisher's; Mr. Stacy Bender's, East Broad street; Fritt's place, Benson place; Dr. Harrison's property; Ed. Woodruff's, Central avenue; Pot Luck; Bazley's, Harrison avenue; Irving Carpenter, 135 Central avenue, two; Rumspaden's, 605 Mountain avenue; Westfield Golf Club, Jerusalem road; Rich's Place, Mountainside, near Bird's Corner; Mr. Leigh Pearsall, two; Mr. Willoughby, four (two of these are the best in town); Gideon E. Ludlow, end of Woodland road, Cranford, two.

Early Settlement—Tradition says that the last battle with the Indians of this section was near old Richard French's residence on the road to Springfield beyond Branch Mills. The people living on the mountain and at Locust Grove would often take refuge in the Badgley home to escape the enmity of the savages. Beyond Willow Grove on the Raritan road from the Gersham Littell farm it is said that Phebe Terry and her parents took refuge in Ash Swamp during one of the early Indian raids.

The Indians hated the Dutch since they tried about 1699 to make slaves of them; and for the Scotch who settled at Scotch Plains, there was a like hatred. They said they would like to drive all of the Scotch folk into the sea.

Gideon E. Ludlow (the name was formerly Ludlum) reports that his grandmother, Margaret Poole, told him there were Indian wigwams in 1790 on the Rahway river, where Union avenue now crosses it. An incident is related that shows the extreme cruelty of the whites exercised at times toward the Indians. It seems that an Indian squaw who was camping with her brave at this point was away when one of the settlers passed by the wigwam. Their papoose had been left alone in camp with no thought of harm. The story goes that this enemy of the Indians took the little child, and laying it on a strip of bark torn from a fallen tree, set it

Newark deserted. When his army left one end of the town, the British came in the other. Thence he marched to Elizabeth Town. The town had been summarily evacuated. Westfield now saw the effects of war for the first time. Long lines of refugees passed through the town on their way to safety back of the mountains. For days the procession continued, leaving their homes to the rapine of the enemy. The British reported twenty tons of musket balls, together with great quantities of stores, left behind in Elizabeth Town. At this time those who were disposed to espouse the British cause took umbrage under the protecting wing of General Lord Cornwallis' army. The following advertisement is indicative of what often happened:

Whereas, the subscriber purchased a plantation in the autumn of 1776, situated in Westfield in the Borough of Elizabeth Town, of Samuel Smith, and paid the greater part of the consideration Money; but as said Smith soon after fled to the enemy without giving a title for said plantation: NOTICE is hereby given, that application will be made to the General Assembly of this State, at their next session, in order to get an act passed that the property of the above premises may be secured to MOSES TUCKER.

General Williamson wrote from Morris Town, December 8, 1776: "Very few of the Counties of Essex and Bergen joined my command. I have it from good intelligence that many who bore the character of warm Whigs have been foremost in seeking protection from General Howe and forsaking the American cause."

While in Elizabeth Town, Lord Howe announced that he would publish pardon and peace to all who desired it. He gave sixty days of grace from the Congress down to the Committee. No man on the continent was to be denied his mercy. The Rev. Mr. Caldwell, who had fled back of the mountains, wrote, "The Lord delivered us from his mercy." Cornwallis' troops entered the town, "a grand army." Washington's army had just left in tattered garb. There were no more than 3,500. The cause for liberty looked hopeless to the inhabitants of Westfield; but they were loyal to their staunch patriots in arms. Those were the darkest days of the conflict. Ashbel Green said at this time, "The whole population could have been bought for eighteen pence a head."

In December, 1776, there were about 6,000 British in Elizabeth. All of the cattle in the vicinity had been driven back of the mountain before they took the town. Foraging parties of the enemy gathered up all the hay and grain they could find and transported it to New York. These activities by the British led to the bitterest spirit between Whigs and Tories. The Rev. Caldwell wrote General Lee on December 12, "Our militia who have taken off many of the most active Tories have made some prisoners and among others have shot their English forage master so that he is mortally or very illy wounded." From this section the enemy had collected some 400 cattle and 200 sheep and had assembled them at Woodbridge. The State militia, made up partially of men from Westfield township, was much exercised by these depredations, and on the night of December 11 recovered all of the cattle and sheep, drove them through Westfield, and back of the mountains to safety.

The following list of claims for depredation made by the enemy mainly during the years 1776 and 1777 further shows the extent to which the enemy was active in this section of the State:

John Ross, the father of Gideon Ross, lived here at this time. The following list of articles, together with those given above, shows the extent to which the depredations of the army of Howe and Cornwallis were carried. List of articles taken by British army, June 26 and 27, 1777:

field, and we took three prisoners. By the quantity the enemy carried off in sleds, and waggons, it is supposed they had near 20 killed and twice that number wounded.

Gen. Maxwell also mentions, that by a soldier taken about the 11th instant, he learns that Gen. Howe was at Bonamtown during the engagement, till he saw his troops make the best of their way home, and then he thought it was time for him to go. That the enemy's real design in coming out that day was to secure the General's safe passage to Amboy, and that he is since gone to New York. The soldier further says they talk no more of going to Morris-Town. Gen. Maxwell adds, that by every account from prisoners, deserters, and inhabitants, the killed, wounded and missing of the enemy, in the action of the 23d of February, was upwards of 500.—The "Pennsylvania Journal," March 19, 1777.

The British army was stationed at New Brunswick and Perth Amboy with its line of defense connecting the two. Washington was at Morristown during the winter, and the line of defense from Elizabeth Town through Westfield to Scotch Plains was guarded by Maxwell, Sullivan and Littell. Skirmishing and foraging took place over the plains between these two lines continually. In most cases the initiative came from our troops, and with few exceptions they came off with the better part of the bargain. At this time all of the passes over the mountain were heavily guarded.

During the winter of 1777 at Lowantica, near Morristown, the regular army suffered great privation. There was an epidemic of smallpox that took many. Other diseases had their toll. Clothing and food were scarce, and the general morale sank to a very low level.

There were many traitors in our ranks, as well as loyalists in every community. Food and powder in sufficient quantity were hard to get, and the general morale of the regular army was low. The State militia in New Jersey cannot be commended too highly. To their supporting spirit Westfield made no small contribution. The women did their part most heroically. They made clothing for the soldiers encamped at Lowantica. The army there was scantily clothed and suffered during the severe winter nearly as much as at Valley Forge. The women made mittens, knitted stockings, and quilted blankets for their comfort.

The Jersey Blues from the beginning of the war were outfitted by the ladies of the country. Each suit was made up of two white frocks, two pairs of pantaloons, and coat of blue trimmed with red. Records show that the patriotic women in and about Newark, Elizabeth, and Morristown furnished to the army two frocks and pantaloons of their own spinning. The Jersey Blues gave notable service in protecting the inhabitants south of the Watchungs, and guarding Washington at Morristown and Middlebrook. They were led by Captain Eliakim Littell. Washington Irving, in his "Life of Washington," commends the Jersey patriots at home in the following manner: "To the honor of the Magistrates and people of Jersey, Washington testifies that requisitions for supplies were promptly complied with." Ira Tuttle says, "Provisions came in with hearty good will from the farmers, together with stockings, shoes, coats and blankets."

There was great relief with the approach of spring. The army's first move was to Middlebrook, about a mile back of what is now Manville, near Somerville. Howe at New Brunswick tried to draw Washington into an engagement. He had decided to evacuate New Brunswick, but wished to do it in such a way as to encounter Washington's main army. The first movement pointed toward a march to Somerset Court House; but Washington did not respond. He retreated to New Brunswick, immediately evacuated it, and moved to Perth Amboy. On reaching Perth Amboy, some detachments were sent across to Staten Island. On this move response came from Washington's army in a change from Middlebrook to New Market. This was what Howe had been hoping and planning for, and at once, Thursday morning, June 26, 1777, his men were ordered back from Staten Island and with twelve to fourteen hundred men a march direct toward the American line was begun. On observing Howe's intent, Washington fell back to Middlebrook. The advance guard on its way to Scotch Plains encountered Lord Stirling's division and there was a lively "brush" on what is now Terrel road. Stirling was forced to retreat with a small loss. Colonel Daniel Morgan's Corps of Rangers harrassed Lord Cornwallis at Woodbridge.

It was at this time, when the armies of Howe and Cornwallis were advancing from Metuchen toward Scotch Plains, that Mrs. Elizabeth Frazee, better known as "Aunt Betty," encountered the august presence of Lord Cornwallis. The home of "Aunt Betty" was on the line of march on the left hand side going east on Raritan road, at its junction with the Terril road near Ash Swamp. It is the Ryno house on the northwest corner at Two Bridges. It was about noontime when the army came up to her residence. "Aunt Betty" was baking bread for the Continentals, who were stubbornly falling back before the enemy. The hungry Cornwallis caught the appetizing odors coming from the large dome shaped bake oven. As the line halted he dismounted, went to the door of her home, and with a courtly air requested, "My lady, may it please you to give to Lord Cornwallis the first loaf that comes from your oven of baking bread." On saying this he confidently betook himself to a shade tree in the yard, for the day was unusually hot. When the bread was ready to be taken from the oven, Aunt Betty, with a steaming loaf, unhesitatingly complied with the general's request; but on presenting it to him retorted, "Your lordship will please understand that I give this bread in fear, and not in love." Standing before her at military salute with admiration for her courage, Cornwallis replied, "'Not I, nor a man of my command shall accept a single loaf." It has been aptly stated by the Rev. Newton W. Cadwell that Aunt Betty Frazee was "Westfield's Barbara Fretchie."

The founders of the church were:

William Looker also owned plot No. 55 on the northwest; to the west of this plot lay Nathaniel Whitehead's lot; south of this and west of the Looker tract, Peter Morse's tract; south of this, Samuel Morse; last, and south of the Looker tract, the Yokam Andress tract; east, unsurveyed lands and tract of Little John Wilson; north of unsurveyed tract and east of Looker tract, the land of Governor Robert Barclay. In 1785 the land from Mountain avenue to Elm street was sold in lots to the following persons, and in the following order from Mountain avenue, Samuel Downer, John Hole, Azariah Clark, and Charles Gillman.

The original frame building was without a spire until 1758. A bell was first placed in the steeple at this time and the name of the parish was cast upon it. This was the bell that was captured by the British, June 23, 1780. After it was taken from the steeple it was carried to Staten Island, and there because of its fine tone was placed in the belfry of a public building. William Clark, who was captured in this same escapade of the British was confined in the Sugar House Prison in New York, from his prison window one day caught the tones of a familiar bell coming from Staten Island. He listened again, and with a brisk breeze from the south the bell rang clear and loud. There was no doubt, and he exclaimed, "That is the old Westfield bell." After the war he returned home, and through his efforts the old bell was reclaimed and placed again in the steeple from which it had been stolen. It is said that "Sambo," the old sexton, in his great joy over its return, rang it so loud and so long that he cracked it. The bell in the present church was cast in 1847. It contains the metal of the original bell.

Tradition says that according to custom contributions of silver plate, jewelry, and Spanish money to the amount of forty dollars were given to be melted into it. It was hung in a tree near the church at first.

The buildings of the Westfield church have been as follows: Log church on Benson Place, 1727-1735 (?); church along Broad street, "on green;" present site, 1735, (?), 1803 (?); church in front of present structure, 1803-1861; present church, 1861-

At this early time it was the feeling of the congregation that the minister should live, labor, and die among them. This was true of the Rev. Benjamin Woodruff, who was the beloved pastor of the congregation from 1759 to 1803. He was buried at the head of the center aisle of the church standing prior to the present one, which was being erected at the time of his death. Over his grave was placed the marble slab which may be seen in the wall of the vestibule of the present edifice.

The following is an article of agreement with the Rev. Benjamin Woodruff, minister, with a list of the subscribers to his salary for the year 1757:

In 1756 the bonds of the church and congregation of Westfield, with interest, were held as follows: Ebenezer Price, £10 0s., 0d.; Samuel Yamans, £8, 12s., 2d.; Jonathan Marsh, £11, 2s., 3d.; Henry Clarke, £17, 7s., 0d.

During the ministry of Mr. Woodruff, 398 persons made profession of faith, about 1,100 were baptized, and 752 couples were married. This record bespeaks a most praiseworthy service to the glory of God and to the good of mankind.

The land west of the Presbyterian church was first used as a burial grounds about 1720. It was taken from "parsonage land" which belonged to the church. Prior to the setting aside of this plot for burial purposes it was the custom for farmers to bury members of their family in small cemeteries on their own farms. There are a number of such burial plots in Westfield township. There is one on the Cranford road, at the east end of Broad street, on the northeastern side of the road. There is another of the French family near Branch Mills. At first, undressed stones were used to mark burials, and even after dressed stones were used, they were not used to mark the graves of children under fifteen. The earliest burial that has yet been identified in the old cemetery is that of a Mr. Hetfield, in 1724.

The oldest part of the burial grounds is nearest Mountain avenue. The interments are in rows running north and south. They lie east of the headstones with feet to the east according to the early custom. In the westerly side of the yard this practice is not adhered to. There are in all 1,125 burials according to present records. Prior to the year 1750 there are eighteen marked graves which are made up of the following list:

Briant, Andrew, died November, 1750, 35 years.
Brooks, Jacob, died October 16, 1747, 26 years.

negro man Cuff gave the invitation: "How-de-do! You'd better hitch up next Wednesday night and come over to our house. We are going to have an apple bee." The following was written in reply:

DEAR ——— ———: Yours at command. Cuff arrived, and wife first reckoned how she could not come no way; cause she had the candles to run, the sassiges to make, the carpet-rags to color and the chunk of cloth to set in Bige's trousers. And the old mare has got a chestnut in one of her ears and is lame a little, but we are coming if we have to walk. Perkins' oldest boy is coming over to milk, and feed the chickens, so that we can get away early. Wife is all in a pucker about how to get herself up,—whether to wear her plain Linsey Woolsey and clash, or her new speckled chints and bunnit. Unless you send word by Hatfield's boy when he comes over to Lambert Mills in the morning, we shall come just as we are. Your obedient servant,

P. S.—Can you lend us a lantern to come home by? Sally Lee will come with us, and her oldest son, Jems.

The Scudder homestead is located west of Gallows Hill, on East Main street, on the right hand side coming toward Westfield. This property is still owned and occupied by the Scudders. During the Revolution it was the home of Captain John Scudder. He was one of the first to enlist and soon was made a captain and then colonel. Detachments of the army often moved over the highway by his house. Aunt Ann Scudder, who died at the advanced age of ninety-five, often spoke of her mother telling the story of Lord Stirling's visit to their home. It has been handed down through the family that Stirling with some of his men stopped at the Scudder house for a period of about six weeks. Lord Stirling was active in this section in the early part of the war. It will be recalled that many of the men who accompanied Stirling on the Blue Mountain Valley expedition were from Westfield. There is possibility that prior to this adventure he might have stopped with the Scudders.

A notable house in our town was the home of Samuel Downer, on the northwest corner of East Broad street and Mountain avenue, the home of Dr. Kinch. The family tradition says that Mr. Downer came from Elizabeth Town to Westfield township in 1744 and learned the blacksmith trade with Daniel Robinson, who had a forge about a half-mile east of the Ross homestead in Manor Park. This forge was burned to the ground by the Hessians, who were enraged by its owner refusing them something to drink. Mr. Downer was in consequence out of employment, and he set up a forge of his own on Jerusalem road. Both Mr. Downer and his son were very active patriots. They enlisted as "minutemen," were with Washington at Morristown during the winter of 1779-80, fought at Connecticut Farms, and Springfield, and took part in many engagements in Elizabeth Town. It is reported that at Springfield, Samuel Downer became separated for a time from his company and was in grave danger between the fires of the contending armies; but through his coolness and strategic conduct came forth without a wound. For many years after the war his stories of heroism and adventure entertained the populace of the town. Until his death he was honored as Westfield's greatest hero of the war, and was awarded the place of standard bearer on all public occasions. He was a man of powerful physique and great endurance. He died in Orange, October 22, 1824, at the ripe old age of 101 years. He was buried in the old cemetery west of the church.

Samuel Downer, the second, kept a store just west of the library on the south side of Broad street. In 1812 the store was moved to the house now occupied by Dr. Kinch. Mr. Downer was one of the promoters of the Elizabeth & Somerville railroad, and from 1825 to 1833 postmaster of the town.

The Littell homestead still stands on the Old Raritan road, beyond Willow Grove, on the right hand side going west. It is the first house after passing the Shackamaxon Golf Links. Captain Eliakim Littell, of the Jersey Blues, was related to this family. He served at the head of the State militia in this section with Maxwell, and on many occasions protected the people from the depredations of the enemy. On June 23, 1777, the British came to Westfield by the Old Raritan road, and in so doing passed the Littell homestead. The tradition of the family is, on the approach of the army the Terry family took refuge in Ash Swamp, and that the little girl Phebe was carried to safety on the back of her grandfather. This Phebe Terry later married Gershom Littell, who lived on the property in question.

Westfield Township—The township of Elizabeth Town was fully organized in 1693, and continued a part of Essex county until the year 1857. It was on January 27, 1794, that the township of Westfield was set apart from the township of Elizabeth Town. This same year Rahway was divided from Westfield. Up until this time this section was known in the administration of township laws as the "Westfield Ward." This event was the occasion of a great celebration. A letter written by a Westfield girl to a girl friend on Staten Island vividly depicts the public spirit shown:

> We had a noble time on Wednesday, for you must know that Westfield is now a town. All the neighbors met at Captain Stamburg's, and such feasting and rejoicing you never saw. Everybody brought something toward the good will, and there was more than enough to furnish meat and drink to everyone in the new town. Ephraim Marsh furnished an ox that was roasted whole, there were stacks of pies, and dough-nuts by the bushel. Tables were set in the kitchen, and everybody had all they could desire. And we had cider and metheglin for the entertainment of the men.

The fair writer goes on with bits of gossip, tells how the young men wrestled, and shot at a mark, and how all went home at sundown perfectly happy.

The resolution by the Legislature creating the Township of Westfield reads as follows:

> Whereas, the Legislature of the State of New Jersey on the 27th day of January, 1794, enacted, that all that part of the Township of Elizabeth lying within the following lines: Beginning at the line of the County of Middlesex where the north and west branches of Rahway River meet and form a junction; from thence running up the North branch of the Rahway River to the mouth of Normahiggin Branch, it being the southeast corner of the Township of Springfield; from thence running with the line of Springfield aforesaid in a course of North forty-nine degrees west to the top of the mountain; from thence on the course to the east branch of Green Brook; thence down said branch and Green Brook to the line that divides the counties of Essex and Middlesex; thence along the line of Middlesex to the place of beginning, should be set off from the Township of Elizabeth and made a separate Township, and to be called by the name of the Township of Westfield.

Such were the men and women who bequeathed to us Westfield—God-fearing, liberty-loving, hard-working. With what jealous care we should guard our heritage that we may pass it on, unsullied, to those who follow us.

On January 27, 1894, an elaborate program commemorating the setting-off of the township was held. The program in full is found in Ricord's "History of Union County," page 529.

On the Sunday preceding the Fourth of July, 1894, there was a union service in the Presbyterian Church. Abraham Coles, of Scotch Plains, composed patriotic hymns for the occasion, and the Rev. David R. Frazer, of Newark, gave an address. On July 3 a public fountain was unveiled. July 4 witnessed a parade of Sunday school children, militia and patriotic citizens, with public speaking and a national salute of forty-four guns.

Growth of Community—The center of the town in the earliest times was at the junction of Central avenue (road to Rahway) and Mountain avenue with Broad street. There were located the old Westfield Tavern, Thomas Baker's Inn, the Meeting House, the Parsonage, and the resi-

Inns, Stores and Hotels—In Revolutionary times there were two taverns—Thomas Baker's Inn was on the southeast corner of Central avenue and Broad street, where the new moving picture playhouse now stands; and the other was a little west of the head of Central avenue, where the Russell building is located. This was known for many years as the Westfield Tavern. The earliest records of the innkeepers are as follows: 1794, Azariah Clark; 1794, Charles Gilman; 1799, Mary Gilman; 1799, Alexander Richards; 1799, Benjamin Crane; 1804, Samuel Ross; 1816, John Clark; 1819, Sanford Hickes; 1819, Thomas Burlocks; 1825-49, John M. Clark, who was also justice of the peace, assessor, collector, and in 1854 a member of the Legislature; 1867-69, John M. C. Marsh; 1870, John J. Smalley; 1871-72, C. Mitchell; 1873, W. H. Kingman; 1874-79, C. Brocksmith; 1880-81, A. W. Moffett; 1881-86, Samuel Godschalk; 1887-97, Frederick Coombs; 1897, Herbert Ward.

It is said that one of the above innkeepers once asked Mr. Daniel Halsey, the school teacher, to write an appropriate inscription for his hotel sign; and in response to the request the following lines were promptly written:

Rum, whiskey, brandy, cordial, porter, beer,
Ale, applejack and gin are dealt out here,
Diluted, raw, or mixed in any measure,
To all consumers,—come and act your pleasure;
The above specifics will in time, God knows,
Put to a period all your earthly woes;
Or, would you bring life to a splendid close,
Take double slings, repeating dose on dose,—
A panacea this for every ail;
'Twill use you up,—'twas never known to fail.
Use up your property, ere scarce you know it;
Use up your character, or sadly blow it;
Use up your health and strength and mind's repose,
And leave, perhaps, your carcass to the crows!

At the present time the one hotel that accommodates transient guests is Willets' on North avenue, east of the Plaza, on the south side.

From an old account book which is covered with leaves from "The Journal of the Legislative Council of New Jersey," bearing the date Friday, October 27, 1780, a number of interesting entries have been copied. This book is now the property of Robert Woodruff, and was selected from among a mass of old papers which were about to be destroyed when the Ripley Mansion was cleaned out. This house was the home of Gideon Ross, who for many years was the factotum of the community. On the front cover of the book is the inscription, "Abba Stiles her book. 1789." On the back cover is "Betsy Ross her Book." The accounts are for the years 1788 to 1793:

PREFACE.

The settlement of Elizabethtown was the first within the bounds of New Jersey made by New England people. The Purchase of the land from the Indians was made by John Baily, Daniel Denton and Luke Watson of Jamaica, L. I., October 28, 1664, and the Patent granted by Gov. Nicolls to Capt. John Baker, John Ogden, John Baily, Luke Watson "and their associates," confirming the Indian deed, bears date December 1, 1664. John Ogden of Northampton had bought out Denton's interest, and Capt. John Baker of New York was probably allowed an interest in consideration of his services as interpreter. Gov. Nicolls when he signed this patent was no doubt ignorant of the deed from the Duke of York to Berkley and Carteret made on the 24th day of June previous. Dr. Hatfield in his history of Elizabeth, thinks it probable that a formal occupation was made upon the land between October and December 1664, and that occupation by actual settlers soon followed. Mr. William A. Whitehead, in his last edition of East Jersey under the Proprietors, gives proof that when Gov. Philip Carteret arrived in 1665, but four English-speaking families were to be found in New Jersey, pioneers of the Jamaica Colony. The patent granted by Governor Nicolls and the Indian purchase were relied upon in after years by the citizens as giving them a good title independent of that of Berkley and Carteret, but the latter grant was prior to the Nicolls patent and a vast amount of litigation was caused by these conflicting grants, lasting until the Revolutionary war put an end to it.

The first meeting house was of wood and of a very humble style of architecture. It was replaced by a new church in 1724, fifty-eight feet in length and forty-two feet in width. An addition in the rear of sixteen feet was made in 1766. On the night of January 25, 1780, a party of British troops and refugees, numbering nearly four hundred, crossed on the ice from Staten Island to Trembly's Point and were led by three Elizabethtown tories by the nearest and most retired route to the town. Here they secured a few prisoners, plundered many of the inhabitants, burned the Court House and Meeting House, and retreated with haste by way of De Hart's Point without loss. Washington spoke of this event a day or two after as "the late misfortune and disgrace of Elizabeth Town." The erection of a new church was commenced in 1784, and completed in 1789. It forms a part of the present edifice, and was extended and improved many times before it reached its present dimensions.

Dr. Kempshall in his historical discourse, delivered January 25, 1880, in celebrating the Centennial Anniversary of the burning of the church says:

"The lot on which the house was built included the present burying-ground, and extended on the west to the river (so called), and contained about eight acres. When the church property was surveyed in 1766, the Trustees affirmed 'that the first purchasers and associates did give the aforesaid tract

[Note: The names on p. 75 are in two columns; on p. 76 in one. Most of the names are preceded by symbols to which there is no key. The nine names following Elmer's are bracketed and followed by the word "Elders." The Elders' wives are bracketed, to the single word "Wifes". Two items crossed off are set in brackets. The word "Elder" following "Benoni Trembly" is in a different ink.

It is apparent that all names to and including "Catharine Miller" were written at the same time with the same pen and ink. "Phebe Carpenter" is in a different ink. "Hannah Raiment" is in a still different ink. The next three appear to be written at the same time with the same pen and ink. From "Simeon Morehouse" to "Abigail Minthorn" the same color ink is used, and the same pen, but probably not written at the same time. The last line was apparently written at one time.]
